TO OPEN NEW CHURCH

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, WILL HOLD INAUGURAL SERVICES

When the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Glendale, meets on Sunday, it will be in its new church home, at the corner of Second and Maryland. For a long time, in fact since its establishment in Glendale, the church has been worshipping in the Masonic Temple. During the time that has elapsed the church has grown with wonderful rapidity and is now a very progressive body with all the usual equipment of a Scientist church. All that was needed was this handsome new building, which is fitted in every way for the development and furtherance of the work.

The church is a handsome frame building with a plain, attractive front. The main entrance on Maryland street leads into a spacious hall, off which are the offices and two dressing rooms. The body of the church building is a large room, with sloping floor, theater chairs and ample lighting conveniences. The center of the ceiling merges into a large octagonal dome, which provides additional light to the audience.

On the north side of the building is situated the readers' platform, which is semicircular, with a raised parapet. On the north wall behind the readers' platform are two panels on which are inscribed the following sentences:

"This is Life eternal that they might know thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent."—Jesus.

"Christianity is again demonstrating the Life that is Truth and the Truth that is Life."—Mary Baker Eddy.

On each side of the readers' platform, in the rear of the church, are the rooms for the First and Second readers and two large classrooms, janitor's closet and other conveniences.

The church will be opened on Sunday in a quiet and unostentatious manner. Invitations will be extended to neighboring centers to attend and there will be a number of visitors present. The church readers, Russell A. Kilgore and Mrs. E. W. White, will officiate.

One of the classrooms on the north side of the building will be used as a primary children's room. All the classrooms have folding doors, which can be thrown back and the classrooms made part of the main auditorium. The main hall will seat 525 persons and when the classrooms are thrown in 600 can be accommodated. It is anticipated that a large audience will be present on Sunday and the seating accommodations will be fully occupied.

O. E. S. MEN ROYAL HOSTS

Members of Glen Eyrie Chapter, O. E. S., of Glendale, enjoyed a happy time Thursday evening when, after the regular meeting of the chapter when Mabel M. Rudy was initiated into the mysteries and beauties of the order, the men entertained the ladies of the chapter. A long table had been arranged across the hall for the ladies while the men were seated at a similarly arranged table on the platform where red carnations were used to good effect. The committee for the evening, Messrs. A. M. Beamon, E. U. Emery, R. M. Grumbling, C. O. Pulliam and Fred Deal, had arranged everything in a way to entertain their guests most delightfully. Appetizing refreshments were served, after which Mr. Emery acted as toastmaster for the evening and called upon the past and present worthy matrons and worthy patrons for toasts. Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, Miss Cora Hickman, Mrs. D. H. Imler, Miss Fredonia Borthick, Mrs. A. W. Tower, Mr. Dan Campbell, Mr. A. W. Tower, Mr. A. M. Beamon, all past worthy matrons and worthy patrons, as well as Mr. Warren Roberts and Mrs. Warren Roberts, present worthy patron and worthy matron, all responded in a most happy vein, and joy and happiness were supreme in the midst of this congenial gathering.

Glen Eyrie is planning for another social affair on the evening of July 13, to take the form of a card party for the members and their escorts. This will be a purely social affair, and no charge will be made. The committee on arrangements for the evening consists of Mrs. S. A. Pollock, Miss Della M. Echols, Mrs. C. H. Woolsey and Mrs. W. S. Noyse.

The stage is being set and seats arranged for the big Peace Pageant, to be given Saturday evening on the Pacific Avenue school grounds.

MEN BANQUET

FEDERATED BROTHERHOOD ENJOY DINNER AND HEAR GOOD SPEECHES

The Federated Brotherhood banquet of Glendale, Tropico and Casa Verdugo, was held in the banquet hall of the Presbyterian church, Thursday evening, June 8. There were one hundred and eight members of the Brotherhood who assembled at seven o'clock to partake of the bountiful supper that had been prepared by the ladies of the Presbyterian church. Dr. I. H. Durfee, president of the Federation, presided. Grace was pronounced by Rev. B. D. Snudden, pastor of the First Methodist church. The waiters, all of whom were men, performed their duties quietly, promptly and efficiently and served the large assemblage of men with an excellent meat pie supper with all accessories.

At the close of the banquet hour, toastmaster Durfee introduced Dr. George F. Kennigott, professor in the University of California, who spoke on two kinds of philosophy, one known as pig trough philosophy and one as work bench philosophy. He said that the egotistical man who sees only self is an example of the pig trough philosopher and the man who can see good in others and who can co-operate with others is a man who practices work bench philosophy. He explained that wars are brought on by the pig trough class of rulers and that people live in peace and harmony when governed by the workbench class of rulers. The speaker gave many examples of how these two kinds of philosophies work out for harm and good in everyday life.

In speaking upon the subject of providing amusements for young men Dr. Kennigott said that it was not necessary to put too much expense in a building. The money should be spent in providing a good instructor rather in having an expensive building without the able instructor. The doctor's address was full of valuable suggestions and was listened to by an attentive and appreciative audience.

The next speaker, H. O. Hill, state secretary of students' work in the Y. M. C. A., outlined briefly the kind of a Y. M. C. A. organization Glendale should have. He stated that it is part of his work to organize Y. M. C. A.'s in cities of similar population to Glendale. He said he had organized one at Whittier and one at South Pasadena, both of which organizations are meeting with the approval of the people of those cities. He said the annual cost for maintaining such an organization is $3,000 per year and the only plan upon which the state association works is to plan an organization for a term of three years, making a total of $9,000 that is necessary to be pledged before entering upon the first year's work. He stated that the method of beginning the Y. M. C. A. work in a city of the population of Glendlae without having the money first pledged would lead to embarrassing conditions. In reply to questions asked Mr. Hill explained that the instructor should receive about $1800 per year and the balance of the $3000 would be used for office rent, telephone rent, and the purchasing of camping equipment. A number of the members of the Brotherhood present spoke upon the subject, all being earnestly in favor of organizing a Y. M. C. A. association in Glendale. In response to a motion which carried a committee whose duty it will be to inquire into the best method of proceeding to organize a Y. M. C. A. was appointed and consists of L. C. Leeds, Presbyterian church; E. W. Kendrick, Baptist; Fred L. Thompson, Christian; D. E. Johnson, West Glendale Methodist; J. B. Clark, Casa Verdugo Methodist; W. E. Hewitt, Episcopal. Representatives from other churches will be named later.

This meeting of the Federated Brotherhood was considered one of the best that has been held at any time in the history of the federation.

SUDDEN DEATH

Thursday morning, while Mr. Albert Lane was driving to Los Angeles in company with his wife and son from their home in Soledad canyon, he was taken suddenly ill for the first time in twenty-five years. Fifteen minutes after Mr. Lane complained of not feeling well he had passed away.

The remains were brought to the Scovern-Letton-Frey Undertaking parlors where funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Interment at Forest Lawn cemetery.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Saturday; westerly winds.

TRANSACTIONS OF REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

VARIOUS CANDIDATES PUT IN NOMINATION—BURTON ENTHUSIASM GREATER THAN HUGHES'

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

CHICAGO, June 9.—When Senator Smoot told the convention this morning that at the Peace conference between the Republicans and the Progressives the latter party informed the committee that they thought Roosevelt should be nominated there was an outburst of applause from the galleries but the response from the delegates was feeble and scattered. Governor Whitman of New York then put Hughes in nomination for president. A demonstration followed, the New York delegation parading the hall. The demonstration lasted 30 minutes.

Nomination speeches were made for John W. Weeks, Theodore Burton, Cummins, Root, Brumbaugh, Sherman and Du Pont. When Burton's name was put in nomination a demonstration was begun that lasted 34 minutes and exceeded that of Hughes in enthusiasm.

Ex-president Roosevelt told reporters today that there was no change in the situation that would induce him to change his determination not to go to Chicago.

NOTORIOUS PROMOTER GOES TO PRISON

JOHN LYMAN GRANT, WELL-KNOWN COMPANY MANIPULATOR GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

TEUTONS PENETRATE FRENCH LINES

GERMANS MANAGE TO GAIN PRECARIOUS FOOTHOLD IN THE CAURETTES WOODS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, June 9.—News from Paris this morning states that the Germans managed to secure a foothold in the Caurettes woods, penetrating the French lines for a short distance. Counter attacks are being made by the French. The battle is raging with intense fury. Hand to hand fighting is the order of the day.

GERMANS POUNDING AWAY AT HILL 304

TEUTONS AGAIN ASSAULT POSITION SUPPOSED TO BE KEY TO VERDUN FORTIFICATIONS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, June 8.—Concentrated attacks are now being made by the Germans on Hill 304, which they consider as the key to the Verdun positions. The French are holding the position under an unprecedentedly heavy rain of shells of the largest caliber. The Germans are employing the same tactics as they did at Fort Vaux. Enormous masses of troops are thrown forward, battalion after battalion at a time is thrown into the curtain of fire only to be swallowed up. The supply of men, however, seems to be inexhaustible. They are driven into the inferno in the hope that ultimately the defenders will be all killed off.

LEMBERG IS GOAL OF RUSSIANS IN DRIVE

MUSCOVITES HOPE TO CAPTURE GREAT AUSTRIAN FORTRESS BEFORE LONG

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, June 9.—Lemberg, the great Austrian fortress, is the goal of the present Russian drive. Lemberg lies a hundred miles from the present fighting front, but at the rate at which the Muscovites are smashing up the Austrian defense it will be reached before long. Five strong Austrian army corps are now in full retreat before the victorious Russians who have been marvelously strengthened in artillery.

RUSSIAN SUCCESS RELIEVES ITALIANS

ROMAN FORCES MAKE GAINS IN THE REGION OF THE CHIAVE VALLEY—AUSTRIANS WITHDRAW

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, June 9.—The Italians have made gains in the Trent region, in the valley of the Chiave. The Austrians are weakening. It is believed that they are withdrawing troops from the Italian front to rush them to the frontier line where the Russian attack is sweeping everything before it. The Austrian forces attempting to debouch from Monte Cengio are cut down by the Italian machine gun fire and cannot advance.

CLASS DAY ADDRESS

CAROL WILLISFORD GIVES GOOD ADVICE TO THE UNDERGRADUATES

"Would I might utter all my heart can feel,
But there are thoughts weak words will not reveal;
The rarest fruitage is the last to fall,
The strongest language hath no words at all."

We meet tonight for one of the farewell occasions of the year. There will be others for every event now that brings us together will be but another farewell. As we come to these last days of our High School course, we cannot but remember some of the changes that have taken place during the last four years, and as every opportunity means responsibility, your responsibility is as much greater than ours has been as is your opportunity greater.

When the class of 1916 entered these halls, we came to but one building—the entering class of this year came to three. Improvement along other lines has been on the same scale—enlarged grounds, increased equipment, more adequate furnishings, a library almost doubled, additional teachers, more and better courses of study, increasingly more students, all these add to your opportunity and thus to your responsibility.

It is generally understood, of course, that the scholarship and literary ability of the school are bound up in the Senior class: the Juniors will please to remember that in another week they will be the Seniors—but the poetry of this production is not original with any senior but is quoted or paraphrased from the poet Carleton, to whom due apologies are offered.

The years of the High School course are ever in our mind and we would give a word to each.

First with a wildly ominous helloo,
The frisky Freshman shuffles into view,
And shouts aloud the war cry of his clan,
And makes friends with the faculty to a man,
Sees looking upward at the other classes
Three tandem teams of senseless, useless masses,
And scarcely knowing what he does it for,
Vows against them unmitigated war,
And aims to show them that tho' they may tread
In stately grand procession o'er his head,
The animated pathway that they scorn
May sometimes bristle with a hidden thorn.

To you, Freshmen, is given a double responsibility, that of being the largest class in the school, and of having the greatest opportunity for helping Glendale High. You still have before you three long, yet seemingly short years. Great changes will take place during that time—all of which will be moulded and shaped by your influence. May that influence always be for the best.

When the Sophomore has just begun
The study of his merits, one by one,
He finds that he, a bright scholastic blade,
Is fearfully and wonderfully made.
He discovers how much greater is his share
Of genius than he was at first aware;
Then with a ken beyond his tender age,
He sweeps o'er history's closely printed page,
Conjecturing how this world so long endured,
With his co-operation unsecured.
Then he across Biology takes sight
To see what creatures were created right,
And looks the plants that Heaven has fashioned, through,
To see if they were rightly finished, too.

May the Sophomore class find in the years of High School life before you, equipment for a noble and helpful career. May you learn that success or failure is no incident or accident of circumstance, but the inevitable result of work done or left undone. May you be found by teachers and students to be dependable and honorable. May the brightness of Glendale High be made brighter by your deeds.

Next the spruce Junior not disposed to shirk,
Begins to get down fairly to his work;
Strives to run foremost in the High School race,
Or at least fill a creditable place.
Now he bears o'er the rough and hard highway,
The heat and burden of the every day,

NEARING THE CLOSE

SENIORS SHOW VARIED ACCOMPLISHMENTS AT CLASS DAY FUNCTION

As usual the proceedings on Class Day at the High School were of an informal nature. There was a spontaneity and originality of expression visible in all the doings of the day, which was gratifying to teachers and students alike. Needless to say the large crowd of parents and friends who filled the auditorium of the High School last night were pleased with the demonstration of the gifts and graces of those about to graduate.

The Senior supper at 5:30 p. m. was a joyous affair. The Ivy Procession and Ivy planting had in them elements of amusement that lent an atmosphere of fun to what might otherwise have assumed too much the emphasis of grief over leaving the school. Among the articles of interest buried in the earth where the ivy was planted were some old school histories, which were interred with unusual signs of rejoicing.

Class Day came to a close in the auditorium Thursday night, when sixty graduates marched into the large hall, where their friends awaited their appearance with interest. As the presentable procession entered the orchestra played a march. Then came forward on the platform seven seniors of the Boys' Glee club, Jamie Shea, I. S. Brown, J. T. Beach, R. F. Kolts, Samuel A. Merriken, William Gustave Bode, and George T. Dyer. These seven made sweet music, their voices blending in pleasing harmony as they sang "Marie, Marie," and "Fishin'" as well as other ditties in answer to the applause that greeted them.

Richard Burk read the class "will," bequeathing to the successors of the seniors many interesting relics of the past.

Carol Willisford's address, published in another column, was a clever medley of poetry and prose, touching off the situation with wit and humor. Jeannette McLennan's reply, also published in another column, was characterized by a pleasing humor not unmingled with a sarcastic appreciation of the inheritance bequeathed by the seniors to the juniors.

Jamie Shea, who is the modest possessor of a nice singing voice, sang "When Song Is Sweet." The class memorial, a marble switchboard for the electric lights of the school, was presented by William Renshaw in a manly and appropriate speech. Principal George U. Moyse, in accepting the memorial, took occasion to praise the senior class for its diligence and its many excellent qualities and to express regret at the severance of the ties of the four past years.

The class prophecy took the form of a kind of reunion of members of the class—Grace Beach, Vera Bayard, Mary Jane Evans and Jamie Shea, supposed to take place in the year 1926. In the course of their reminiscences the four told of many curious developments in the lives of members of the class and trumped up some wonderfully assorted marriages. They kept the audience in a roar.

With the singing of the class song to the tune of "The Wearin' o' the Green" the proceedings came to a close. Dorothy Cloud's words written for the class song gave appropriate expression to the feelings of the Senior class of 1916 as it took part in such proceedings for the last time.

FORTUNE TELLER FINED

It is a costly business to tell fortunes in Glendale. A city ordinance directed against astrologers, palmists, phrenologists, life readers, fortune tellers, clairvoyants, caliaudients, mediums, prophets, magicians, necromancers and all that fraternity that lives by its own wits out of the pockets of credulous humanity, demands that those who practice such arts shall pay a license fee of $150 a month, is they desire to practice in Glendale.

One of the fortune-telling community who seems to make a fairly good thing out of her profession was arrested Thursday morning by Patrolman Arrington. News was telephoned to the police to the effect that the woman was practicing her art in the vicinity of Seventh and Central. The officer found her driving from house to house, with a horse and buggy and her young daughter. Brought before Judge Whomes the woman, who said her name was Miller, considered herself fortunate in getting off with a $5 fine. She shook the dust of Glendale off her feet and sought other and less strenuous fields.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1916

AMERICAN CURATIVE SPRINGS

Long ago the Indians of North America from Saratoga to Arrowhead knew of the curative powers of many native hot springs. The Indians of New York state, the Chippewas, the Mohicans, the Onondagas, the Oneidas and the many other tribes that roamed that vast territory used to resort to the springs at Saratoga to have their wounds cured and their systems renovated. In these modern days countless other springs have been discovered all across the continent and away down south, in sunny California and in Arctic Alaska.

California has hot springs all throughout the State and many of these, from the famous Arrowhead to those that lie near the Mexican border, are as useful in the cure of many diseases now as they were in the days when the Indian roamed the prairies.

Some of these hot springs attract annually a large number of people, who find in the waters, specially of those that possess radio-active properties, health and strength. In California the curative springs are in the hands of private individuals or companies which exploit them for the benefit of the public and annually reap a harvest of coin out of the healing waters.

Some of these curative waters are not far from Glendale, which has from its close proximity to the mountains an exceptionally pure and sparkling supply of domestic water. Different from all these, however, is the Hot Springs Reservation in the Ozark mountains of Arkansas, which is famous for its hot springs. The reservation is the oldest national park in the United States, having received that status in 1832, forty years before the wonders of the Yellowstone first inspired Congress with the idea that scenery was a national asset deserving of preservation for the use and enjoyment of succeeding generations.

What inspired Congress, however, in regard to the Arkansas reservation, was the power of the hot waters to alleviate certain bodily ills. The legislators of the country determined to retain possession of the springs as a public asset, available to all persons for all time, at a minimum, even a nominal cost.

Hot Springs mountain, from which the healing waters flow, is about fifty miles west of Little Rock. There is now a city of 16,000 inhabitants there known as Hot Springs. Adjoining the borders of the city, at the foot of the mountain, lies the reservation, a tract of 912 acres, inclosing all the forty-six hot springs. Eleven bathhouses are in the reservation and a dozen more in the city, all under government regulation. There are also cold springs of high curative value. The Department of the Interior has spent altogether more than a million dollars on the development of the reservation.

Tradition says that the curative properties of the hot springs were known to the Indians long before the Spanish invasion under Cortez. It is probable that they were known to De Soto, who died in 1542, less than a hundred miles away. It is said that the Indian tribes warred for the possession of the springs but that finally a treaty was made by which it was agreed that all the tribes should hold the springs in common. To this day the waters retain their wonderful curative powers, which are due to radio-activity.

DEATH OF YUAN SHI KAI

Yuan Shi Kai was the Caesar of China. He did not emulate Caesar's modesty, however, and thrice refuse a kingly crown. From the moment that the monarchy lay within his grasp he never ceased to plot to attain it. He had the opportunity of a lifetime to be the Moses who should have led his country out of the wilderness of ancient superstition and hidebound exclusiveness; but he was not a man of great enough soul to rise to the occasion. Having been made president of China he took advantage of his position to betray his country.

It has never been a healthy occupation in China—that of a traitor. Chinese methods are very subtle and very direct. Obnoxious statesmen have always disappeared very conveniently from off the national stage. In the golden days of the empire a polite request would be conveyed to the obnoxious one to make himself scarce and he would have no alternative. When the man was a "higher-up" as was Yuan-Shi-Kai, it became necessary to proceed with more circumspection so some of his immediate entourage would be subsidized to undertake his taking off.

There seems little doubt that Yuan-Shi-Kai was dismissed from this life in some such manner. Some weeks ago a report was circulated that he had been poisoned. It is likely that at that time it was imagined the deed had been done; but the announcement was premature for the assassins did not manage to carry out their plan until this week.

China has had enough of kings for a time at least and Yuan showed that he was not in touch with the people when he attempted to create himself an emperor. As president of the country he had all the power he could have desired and it was most unfortunate that he should have desired to have what was a mere shadow when he already had the substance.

Under the circumstances it is perhaps as well for China that Yuan Shi Kai is out of the road. It is said that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who was the leader of the rebellion against the ancient dynasty and became first president of China, is in line for the presidency. Sun Yat Sen would make a good president if he can be persuaded to take up again a burden which he laid down on his own accord.

Character is founded on honesty. Without honesty there is no dealing between man and man; between nation and nation. If there had been less diplomacy and more honesty between the nations of Europe it is probable that the world would have been spared the conflict that is now devastating the cities and countries of Europe.

GLENDALE FOOTHILLS

Mrs. George Moreland Mitchell, of Yuma, Arizona, who has been visiting Miss Barbara Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell at their Kenneth road home for some time, has returned to her home, much pleased with the climate and surroundings of the Foothills.

Mrs. George Mitchell, her two daughters and her son leave Saturday for their annual summer's visit to Mr. Mitchell's ranch at Uva Wyoming. Mr. Mitchell left at the beginning of the week.

On Tuesday, June 6, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McPeak of Los Angeles, parents of Mrs. Daniel Campbell and Mrs. Arthur Campbell, celebrated the anniversary of their marriage. In honor of the event their two daughters had lunch with them on that day, followed by a motor trip to Mt. Hollywood and Griffith Park. Wednesday, June 7, was the birthday of Mr. McPeak and his two sons, who are members of the Athletic club, entertained members of the family at dinner at the club on that evening. There were present Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McPeak, and Miss McPeak, Mr. Daniel McPeak, Jr., and John McPeak, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell. The only member of the family absent was Mrs. John McPeak, who is at present visiting in San Francisco.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, who is first vice president of the Glendale Tuesday afternoon club, entertained the board of directors of the club at her beautiful Foothills home, Ard-Eevin, on Kenneth road, Thursday, with a noonday luncheon. Her spacious home had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, wild flowers so abundant in the hills and fields near the Campbell home lent their sweetness and modesty in the reception hall and den, while choice roses nodded from bowls and vases in the parlor. In the dining room, where the dainty and appetizing luncheon was served, the decorations were of sweet peas and birds. In the center of the dining table on a mound of grape leaves reposed a beautiful golden pheasant, which had accidentally come to its death on the Campbell place. The place cards were clever hand made conceits from Mexico, adorned with birds made from real feathers. Music and social intercourse passed the time pleasantly and all too quickly. The ladies invited to enjoy the hospitality of this hostess were Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. E. H. Willisford, Mrs. Lawrence Ellis, Mrs. S. C. Packer, Mrs. Frank Grosvenor, Mrs. J. W. Usilton, Mrs. David Black, Mrs. H. Lee Clotworthy, Mrs. C. E. Harlan, Mrs. E. W. Kinney, Mrs. P. S. McNutt, Mrs. Warren Roberts, Mrs. W. E. Evans, Mrs. Arthur Campbell, Mrs. Harriett Williams Meyers and Mrs. Howard Martin, the two latter from Los Angeles.

And hastes, his mental lungs all out of breath,
As if it were a case of life or death.
Then with some little doubt his brain is fraught
That he's not quite so brilliant as he thought.
And undergoing the reaction drear,
That follows up the soph-o-moric year
He finds each task much harder than before,
And tarries long at every lesson's door.

To the Juniors—"Our friends, the enemy"—we would say, the duties which have been ours will largely become yours. May you remember that our school depends for its standing in the community, on every member of it. May you make it all it can be made, a power for good in this vicinity and among other schools. And as you do the work we have failed to do, may it help you to know that you have with you in it, the sympathy of those who this year bid you farewell.

And so today we live our old lives o'er,
The Freshman gay, the smiling Sophomore,
The anxious Junior, sad and sober browed,
And last but not least, the Senior proud.
To all who now fret under High School control,
Keep this truth in mind, let it call on your soul;
You never will find through terrestrial source,
A pathway more smooth than the old High School course:
In spite of the foes that may lie in the way,
In spite of the clouds that may blot the best day,
In spite of the gibes other students throw forth,
In spite of the rules, and the jokes, etc.,
There's nothing you'll find, tho' you live a long while,
That will show you so many sweet flowers to the mile.
Tho' running through some woeful weeds on the way,
As this same High School course you are taking today.
When nearing Death's station on life's crooked track,
You scan your time table and take a look back,
O'er all the different stations you've passed,
You'll own as you trundle along to the last,
That nothing will strike you with such pleasant force
As that time that you spent in the old High School course.

To the members of the faculty we would express our heartiest appreciation. We realize now as we have not before, that your interest has ever been for us and that your influence will ever affect our lives. We hope we may prove worthy of the tireless effort and care you have bestowed upon us.

Class of 1916! together still,
We've journeyed up the rough and toilsome hill;
Seeking the gems to labor ne'er denied,
Plucking the fruits that deck the mountain side.
Soon, in the glory of a summer's day
We part, and each one goes his different way.
Let each with hope to fire his yearning soul,
Still hurry onward to the shining goal.
The way at times may dark and weary seem,
No ray of sunshine on our pathway beam,
But still with honest purpose toil we on;
And if our steps be upright, straight and true,
Far in the East a golden light shall dawn,
And the bright smile of God come bursting through.

Response by Jeannette McLennan

Dear Friends: I am deeply touched, in reality I am almost overcome when I think of the approaching commencement day which heralds the departure of our beloved Seniors. As I sat here and listened to the sympathetic and loving words brought to the sad and mourning undergraduates, I thought, where can I, an ignorant Junior, find fitting words to answer this beautiful tribute? So you will please remember that I, being a mere undergraduate, am not capable of giving a response other that in simple childish terms.

I think at this commencement season we might liken ourselves to a large family of children when the eldest marries. Each child then moves up a step in the family ranks and several steps in his own self esteem and though there is a feeling of desolation at the loss of an ender brother or sister, it is greatly overcome by this feeling of newly acquired importance. So that is about the way we undergraduates feel now. We are dreadfully grieved at the loss of the Seniors, but we just cannot help the little quivers of joy that tell us that we are about to be objects of greater respect and reverence than ever before. How occasions do alter our feelings.

All through this happy and eventful year the Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors have fought and struggled for the honor of bearing away a mere cup or banner as a relic of the fray and now we feel, from the least of the Juniors to the greatest of the Freshmen, that we would gladly bring all our spoils and lay them at the feet of the Seniors. Such is our affection for the class of '16.

We find it hard to accept with any degree of gratitude the many responsibilities which have suddenly become ours. We realize how impossible it would be for us, in our extreme youth and inexperience, to undertake to do all the Seniors have either done or left undone, but, in order that the class may graduate next week in absolute peace of mind, I think I can safely promise that the undergraduates will agree to shoulder all the responsibilities connected with school life and immediately to relieve the Seniors of the care of the world's affairs as soon as we, in our turn shall leave these walls.

And now the undergraduates wish to bid the Seniors farewell. There has been a strong feeling of rivalry among the classes this past year, but we know and you know that it has been a friendly sort of rivalry and we are truly sorry to see you leave. But as you go and as we say goodbye, we want you to know how much we have always thought of the class of '16 and how we all wish you the greatest amount of success in your life's work.

THE ORIGINAL FIRELESS COOKER

The pit oven so often used by the primitive woman was a near approach to the modern fireless cooker, which is considered a remarkable invention. In the crude pit or oven of the early housewife, hot stones were placed to furnish the necessary heat, and these were kept from contact with the air as much as possible by packing earth around them and the food placed next them, during the cooking process. Other methods of cooking, such as boiling, roasting and broiling, were followed along exactly the same lines as ours today, though they were then unrecognized.
